

LANDING PAGE

Header: The header section contains the website logo and the main navigation menu. The navigation menu includes links to the following pages:

- About
- Clothing
- Accessories
- Carlo Rino (presumably a brand or category)

Hero section: The hero section is the large banner area at the top of the homepage. This section typically features a hero image or video, along with a headline and a call to action (CTA) button. In this wireframe, the text reads “Show Your Street Style”

Content sections: The homepage also appears to have multiple content sections. These sections likely feature product categories, new arrivals, best sellers, or other sales and marketing messages. The specific content of these sections will vary depending on your website's goals and target audience. Here's what the text in the wireframe says:

- New Arrivals
- Best Sellers
- Revolutionaries (possibly a category of clothing)
- Explore (This could be a section with links to different parts of the website)

Footer: The footer section is located at the bottom of the homepage and typically includes contact information, copyright information, and links to other pages on the website, such as the About Us page, privacy policy, and terms of service.
